

Come again

sometimes after nights winds the apricot sun rises anew over forgotten woods / silver fields still under winters spell lavender skies host coal black crows on wing if we only knew the language we might learn the story — what led our ancestral quarks to choose sharing how the long chain polymers discovered happiness in giving where the prokaryotes found the inspiration to sacrifice why love energy / information / warmth / pulse evolution is a measure of the ability to respond engage / listen / answer hold a child's hand help another

care for a garden

cold beyond imagination water shatters cells freeze you could think spring will never come the planetary mind paradise a fantasy earth turns / day grows the source of our joy / the goals our intelligence slowly the World comes from shadow with what we permit ourselves to think / say / do we create the human spirit
